Headteacher's News

It feels like we are fully back into the swing of school life this week. I've met with teachers to discuss children's progress, and it's been encouraging to hear about the strides many are making in their learning.

Teachers will share this progress with you during the parent consultation meetings next week. These meetings will be held in the hall, as in previous years. The online booking portal closes at the end of the day on Monday, 11th November. Most of you have already booked, and I hope the process has been straightforward.

Next Week

Looking ahead, we'll be observing Remembrance Day through my assembly and a two-minute silence at 11am. Next week is also 'Anti-Bullying Week.' At Stanningley, we call it 'Peace Week.' We'll join a national assembly on Wednesday and engage in purposeful activities linked to this theme throughout the week.
